

German language courses for refugees in preparation for university enrollment

In cooperation with Study in Germany Rostock e.V., the Rostock International House is consistently offering crash courses on acquiring a German language level (B1.2 to C1). These courses are dedicated to preparing refugees for prospective studies at a German university. All crash courses are to be completed by taking the TestDaF-exam.

German courses starting at A1.1 level can be offered upon request.

All courses may be entered at any time and any language level.

Requirements:

1. Intention to apply at the University of Rostock
2. desirably some previous knowledge of the German language
3. university entrance qualifications
4. main place of residence in Rostock or its environs (p.r.n. willingness to move)
5. residence on humanitarian grounds, residence permit, suspension of deportation, or residence permit for dependents rejoining family members who have already been recognized as refugees
